MAYOR SEEKS TO END VOTE REPEATING

In the most drastic step ever taken to wipe out illegal voting, Mayor Mansfield today announced he would file a bill with the Legislature tomorrow calling for the re-registration of every voter in the city.

The mayor made specific reference in his statement to the "alleged scandalous condition" in Ward 21, Allston and Brighton, during the last election in November.

Summoning reporters, Mayor Mansfield declared:

"I am filing this bill because of alleged scandalous conditions with reference to voting in Ward 21, Allston, in the November election. There was talk of repeating everywhere and of promiscuous mattress voting everywhere."

RE-REGISTRATION PLAN

Explaining his move to wipe out "repeaters" and "mattress" voters, the mayor said the re-registration would be held between June 15 and July 15 under the direction of the Board of Election Commissioners.

ROCKPORT BANKER KILLS SELF IN VAULT

Rockport, Jan. 13—Harold H. Sargent, 59, of Prospect street, treasurer of the Rockport Savings Bank, shot and killed himself in the vault in the basement of the bank here today.

Medical Examiner Ira B. Hill reported a verdict of suicide.

Bank officials stated Sargent's personality and duties would be discussed with the annual meeting of the board of trustees scheduled for Saturday, but that nothing was postponed.

Sargent left a note, unaddressed, which was found on his desk, it is stated.

"They're not to get me but they won't get me alive."

It was signed "Harold."

According to Dr. Hill, Sargent was in poor health and had been nervously suffering from a severe disorder.

DIES INSTANTLY

He was thought would live but a few minutes, so quick and complete was the shot, which tore away the left side of his head. Sargent's body, on the floor, was found by a brother, Edwin C. Hill, and Miss Dorothy Mills, a teller in the bank, and Miss Hooker. Littlefield, a bank clerk, who were in the room. Lying on Sargent's left hand was a .32 calibre revolver.

ACCOUNTS IN ORDER

After the police removed the body, Lester A. Rogers, vice-president of the bank, issued the statement:

"Sargent was in no difficulty with the bank. His death came as a great shock."

According to police, Sargent was the first to enter the bank, arriving at 8:30 a. m. No one heard the shot.

He leaves a wife, Florine, besides a mother, father and brother.

Arlington Mother, Son, His Aunt Die in Crash

An Arlington mother, her seven-year old son and an aunt of the boy, who lived in Roslindale, were killed in an automobile-passenger bus crash in New Mexico while en route to the coast, according to word received here today.

The victims were Mrs. Frank W. Sarnow, 45, of Moulton road, Arlington; her son, Donald, and Mrs. Elizabeth E. Day, of Montclair avenue, Roslindale.

No word was received of the extent of injuries to the husband of the Arlington woman, Frank W. Sarnow, who was also in the car.

The accident occurred when a tire blew out and forced the sedan into the path of a transcontinental passenger bus.

Sarnow, a warrant officer in the United States Coast Guard, was recently transferred to Seattle and the four left Arlington January 2. Mrs. Day, the aunt, accompanied the trio to spend some time on the coast for her health.

A son, Frank W. Sarnow, Jr., is a junior at Northeastern University in the civil engineering department. He is staying at the home of a friend in Saugus.

FIEND KIDNAPER'S STILETTO HUNTED

BULLETIN

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 13 (AP)—Law officers hunted a long knife today as one of the most important clues to the identity of Charles Mattson's kidnap-killer.

The knife was used in inflicting a deep wound in the kidnaped boy's back before he was slain by a blow on the head. Reports said the wound was narrow, apparently made by a long slimb lade. The ysaid either a carving knife, stiletto or large penknife had been used.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 13 (INS)—Charles Mattson was stabbed in the back by his fiendish kidnap-slayer before being bludgeoned to death with a length of pipe or a hammer, International News Service learned today after an autopsy was performed on the 10-year-old victim's body.

Death did not result from the deep dagger wound which penetrated the boy's body several inches but failed to strike vital organs, the autopsy showed.

The autopsy showed the boy had been given only coarse food and that in quantities barely sufficient to sustain life.

The dagger wound penetrated almost through the body, but missed the vital organs. Charles must have suffered agony before he was eventually slain by his killer.

Evidence also showed the lad had been subjected to fearful inhumanities by his fiend-abductor.

Dr. S. M. Creswell and Dr. Charles McCall, medical associates of the slain boy's father, Dr. William W. Mattson, performed the autopsy. G-Man E. J. Connolly was the only official observer.

Connolly took samples of blue clay clinging to the boy's body and embedded under his fingernails.

G-men are now combing the Puget Sound area to match the blue clay, which is foreign to the frozen woods near Everett, where the body was discovered Monday. When the terrain is located, the G-men then will search for the spot where Charles was held captive and finally murdered.

Charles may have been held captive in the open woods or in a shack, the floor of which was only dirt—a conclusion arrived at by the presence of clay beneath the victim's fingernails.

KIDNAP CAR BLOODSTAINED

Although they masked their emotions in a veil of secrecy, law enforcement agents taking part in the great hunt for the fiendish kidnaper-slayer of Charles Mattson believe they have the car in which the crowly bodies little body was transported to the snow-covered field near Everett where it was found Monday.

This new development, the first definite "break" in the most intensive manhunt in the history of the northwest, was learned by International News Service today despite many denials on all sides.

The car, bloodstained and travel marked, is impounded in a police

'Ann-Mabel' Threat in Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 13 (INS)—Addressed to "Ann" and signed "Mabel"—the dread names used in the Mattson kidnap-slaying—a note demanding $30,000 on threat of kidnaping his daughter was shoved under a North Side physician's door yesterday, it was revealed today.

Pope Quits Bed, Prays in Chair

Vatican City, Jan. 13 (AP)—Pope Pius left his sickbed today for the first time in more than a month.

The Pontiff, ill with a variety of old age complications, was placed in a wheelchair specially constructed to allow him to rest without discomfort on his legs, swollen with varicose veins.

The chair was pushed from the Holy Father's bedroom to a private chapel nearby, where the Pontiff prayed.

Then he was taken to an anti-chamber where he received members of his family who have been barred from his presence for several weeks.

Prelates said the Pope's improving condition might enable him to hold private audiences in the Papal chambers.

[illegible] being held for the [illegible] whose name is not known, who formerly occupied the shack, and Frank Delmore, 45, of Everett, who disappeared from his home last December 27, for $28 ransom, and finally murdered him.

The four gold most desperate officials of Middlesex county are there, an army of local, state and federal agents—after the Blackbeard "Tim." Soon to find the ancient hole in which the abductor reversed across a moor, public, solving a case [illegible] in point, to which the body was found.

The rest which the agents are practically certain is there, are their geek was picked up on an Everett street last night.

It was between Bridge and bore Bascon plains purchased from a town of Everett. It is said to be a black coach with the back seat and floor stained with blood.

OFFICERS DENY FIND

Secretly rushing the machine into the garage, all officers here denied they knew anything of the find, but it was further learned they made an extremely minute examination for fingerprints and other evidence which may connect it with the kidnaping.

The fact the car was picked up early last night—if it is the abductor's machine—would indicate the trail is hot, that the quarry is not far from Everett, and like possibility lowered investigators into greater activity.

Another late development was a report from Lowell, on the Great Northern Railroad near Everett, that a room had been taken [illegible] in the yards and rushed to Seattle under heavy guard.

The Golden had this usual "no comment" on this, while the station agent at Lowell said he knew nothing except "some men grabbed this fellow and hustled him away."

RECONSTRUCT CASE

As the case now is reconstructed, the brutal kidnaper, who tried to get $28,000 ransom from Dr. Mattson after the boy was slain, purloined the suspected car for the one terrible purpose of disposing of the body.

He is believed to have driven around the countryside with the gruesome burden from his hideout where the murder took place, probably eight days before the body was found, from Friday until Saturday, when he found his crudely beaten victim [illegible] snow sheathed brush.

As the ne wand most important development electrified the army of law enforcement agents on the case, the drive was continued on all reports, and tips and clues.

The Northwest was engaged in its great manhunt with a determination to bring the fiend to justice, to capture him dead or alive, and there's prim attitude from the citizenry that not an iot of probability to rue out of [illegible] for finally heard in the vicinity and around Tacoma, where Dr. and Mrs. Mattson are burying their son later today.

2 NEW DEVELOPMENTS

There were two other developments, besides the finding of the car here, which revived crime attention from the G-men and other officers. These were the discovery of a shack, perhaps the "Tim" near the spot where the body was flung and the holding of two men in Grand Forks, British Columbia, for questioning.

State patrolmen and federal agents had established a close [illegible] around the shack, which is in a [illegible] of woods accessible only by a narrow rutty road.

They went over the structure inch by inch, following the report of two nearby farmers who said that two weeks ago, the night after Charles was whisked from home, a car was driven to the shack and remained all night.

HUNT FOR PRINTS

No one was seen near the place again, the farmers said, until last Sunday night, when a car was driven in there, remained a short time, and then disappeared. It was at about this time, investigators believe, that the nude and battered body was consigned to the snow.

State police removed a huge four-foot window from the shack and turned it over to Gmen to be examined for fingerprints. A tin cup and mirror also were examined for fingerprints and a pair of boots were to be compared with footprints found near the body.

The two men arrested in Canada, it was reported here, were nabbed by the Royal Canadian Mounted police for illegal entry into the country and fined for carrying firearms without a permit. They were said to be carrying rifles, shotguns, pistols and a considerable amount of ammunition.

REWARD MAY REACH $50,000

Harold Nathan, chief of the Gmen on this case, would not comment at his Tacoma office on the Canadian angle but it was believed Federal agents are en route to Grand Forks.

The desperado had a price on his head which may reach $50,000.

The search was centered today around Everett and was being directed from a country grocery store. From this temporary headquarters, state patrolmen and G-men were combing every foot of a wild and desolate terrain.

This grocery, by coincidence, is the spot which was set for the ransom payment in an attempted kidnaping several years ago of John Von Herberg, son of a Seattle capitalist. The abduction was thwarted by federal and local authorities and the man who committed the plot was arrested. He now is in California, authorities say. They checked him after the disappearance of Charles Mattson.

CHECK DOPE VICTIM'S BODY

The man who died from an overdose of narcotics at a Seattle hotel and whose body was taken to the morgue also was being closely checked as a possible suspect. The man's body was discovered yesterday, and he apparently had been dead several hours.

The clerk at the hotel said he registered Monday afternoon, appeared nervous, and talked in monosyllables.

He wore a cap with brown and white checks, a long, tan overcoat and a blue blazer of the zipper type, similar to the coverings the description of that worn by the Mattson kidnaper. His fingerprints were in charge of Bonfils.

Meanwhile, a funeral was being arranged for little Charles in Tacoma. In the presence of only members of the family and closest friends, private services will be held today.

If the man escapes alive he faces death as his penalty under three separate laws. The Lindbergh Law provides the death penalty if the kidnap victim is harmed.

STATE DEATH LAW

Under the state kidnaping statute, the convicted abductor must pay for the crime with his life if he demands ransom. Finally, the state statute provides capital punishment for murder.

The five points on which the search was pushed were:

The Olympic peninsula, whence numerous reports came early in the case of a man closely resembling the kidnaper, seen by farmers in the vicinity of Shelton.

The labyrinthine tunneled waterfront of Tacoma, offering hundreds of hideouts for a criminal.

The Seattle underworld, which has provided fresh clues to possible suspects.

The region of the Eastern State Hospital for the Insane at Medical Lake, where a number of inmates were recently paroled.

And the mountainous, wooded territory stretching north of Everett.

BODY IN MORTUARY

Mute evidence to one of the most fiendish crimes in the history of the northwest, the small battered body of the kidnaped child lay in a Seattle mortuary today after an autopsy which showed he was beaten to death by blows from a gun or pick-axe which crushed his skull.

The autopsy showed further that the child had been dead for at least four days before his body was found in the snow by Gordon Morrow, 19-year-old son of a chicken rancher near Everett.

Dr. Mattson, father of the boy, still shaken by the tragic end of 15 days of frantic efforts to buy back his son, expressed his belief that everything humanly possible had been done to bring about the boy's safe return. He said:

"I have the utmost confidence in the Department of Justice, and am convinced that nothing was left undone that might have saved my boy. It was just ordained that this thing had to be."

Los Angeles Man Named as Suspect

Los Angeles, Jan. 13 (INS)—Fred Orrin Haynes, 45, wanted here on old warrants charging burglary, was named today as a suspect in the Charles Mattson kidnap-murder case in information sent to Gmen at Tacoma, Wash.

John H. Hanson, head of the local G-men, was told by long distance police that Haynes, who is well acquainted in Tacoma and Seattle, where he has relatives, was accused by an asserted burglary accomplice of having plotted the kidnaping of a Glendale, Cal., physician's son in December, 1935.

Police said that Hesin Barber, convicted of burglary and sentenced to a year in the county jail here last year in a case involving Haynes, who escaped, made the kidnaping accusation when they questioned her prior to her trial.

Emerson Smith, companion of Miss Barber, was sentenced to a life term in Folsom prison as an habitual criminal for burglary at the time the woman was convicted, police said.

Miss Barber said Smith and Haynes plotted the Glendale "snatch," according to Captain Walter Lentz of the Long Beach detective bureau, who gave Hanson the information.

Lentz reported that Hanson remarked "it sounds good" and said he would forward the information immediately to Tacoma.

WALLY'S Husband Sues WOMAN

SIMPSON HITS SOCIETY GOSSIP

By DAVID P. SENTNER

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service.

London, Jan. 13—The "Simpson case," buried by the British press since the abdication of former King Edward, burst into the limelight again today, with declaration by the London Evening Standard that Ernest Aldrich Simpson, estranged husband of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, has sued an English society woman for alleged slander.

The defendant, according to the Standard, is Mrs. Sutherland, wife of Colonel Arthur Sutherland, O. B. E., M. C.

Simpson, the newspaper stated, has procured a writ basing his action on words alleged to have been made regarding the divorce proceeding instituted by Mrs. Simpson in Fort Worth, Texas, a few weeks prior to the King's abdication.

Sister Angry

The Standard said Simpson intends to claim damages in connection with the alleged slander.

The alleged remark, according to the Standard, was made during a luncheon partly given by a well-known London West End host.

Among the guests were Mrs. Peter Kerr-Smylie, a sister of Simpson. She reported to Simpson the remark which formed the basis of the action.

Mrs. Kerr-Smylie, it was stated, protested against the remark the moment it was made and further to demonstrate her indignation, immediately left the party.

Wherabouts of Mrs. Sutherland was not made known. But the Standard declared Colonel Sutherland, only son of Sir George Sutherland, for many years partner in an influential Calcutta business house, is at present en route to India.

Notable Ties

The Sutherland family is well known in London. Sir George maintains a residence in fashionable upper Brook street, Mayfair, near the palatial home of Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, close friends of Prince King Edward.

Colonel and Mrs. Sutherland were married in January, 1928. Before her marriage she was named Mc-Kechnie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McKechnie. The latter is a daughter of Captain Rennon Greville, a yeoman of the Earl of Warwick, and Lord Greville.

Mrs. Maguire, close friend of Simpson's, asserted she was surprised to learn of the suit. She declined to comment.

Miss Raffray, a New Yorker, has been visiting in London for several months.

Simpson Suit Surprise To His Divorced Wife

Cannes, France, Jan. 13 (INS)—Mrs. Wallis Simpson was surprised to hear today of the London Evening Standard's story that Ernest Simpson had sued Mrs. Arthur Sutherland, English society woman, for slander.

Herman L. Rogers, of New York, Mrs. Simpson's host at the Villa Lou Viei near here, said Mrs. Simpson was not aware of details of the matter. And had no comment to make.

Boy Triplets Born in Providence

Providence, Jan. 13—Triplets, all boys and averaging three pounds each, were born to Mrs. Rosalind Wilson of Charlestone avenue in the Lying-In Hospital here today.

The babies were placed in an oxygen tent and were reported "doing quite well."

When the father of the triplets, James Wells, a sewing machine repair man, was told the "news," he exclaimed:

"I've got to go out and do more business now!"

Egan Loses Fight For School Post

James J. Egan, ousted from the board of schoolhouse commissioners by Mayor Mansfield, today in the State Supreme court lost his fight to regain his post.

His petition for a writ of mandamus to force Mayor Mansfield and Attorney Leo J. Dunn, appointed to his place on the board, to reinstate him as a commissioner, was denied by Judge Frederick T. Field.

A supporter of the Curley administration, Egan was removed from office on December 21. The board of schoolhouse commissioners shortly thereafter reorganized, Dunn's appointment by the mayor.

GETS MALDEN'S GOAT

Police Heroes End Tour

A billion bill goat and two Malden police officers today transformed Malden square into a tableau version of a Wild West showing o' war and rodeo.

The goat's first branch of the peace occurred in the Faulkner section of Malden, where he chased school-bound children to their tasks more effectively than a squad of truant officers.

His course for one mile, to Malden square, was marked by whimsical rushes at pedestrians and trial butts at passing automobiles.

Patrolman F. McCullen and Constable Frank McAllister took a hand in the game when the goat, angered by tooting horns, began butting autos and tied up traffic in the square.

Officers finally armed themselves with a rope and lassoed the animal.

Outside the Malden police station, however, the goat renewed his struggle. It took ten minutes, with one officer pulling and the other pushing, to jail him and wait the truck of the Animal Rescue League.

Sherburne Re-elected

General John H. Sherburne has been unanimously re-elected president of the Massachusetts Safety Council, it was announced today.

ARMY Guards Gold TRAIN

$200,000,000 SENT TO KY.

Fort Knox, Ky., Jan. 13 (AP)—The first bars of gold bullion that are to make this the world's greatest gold depository were brought in and unloaded today under conditions that smacked of World War days.

There was an estimated $200,000,000 of gold. The few spectators whose credentials were O. K. saw machine guns and treasury guards and U. S. soldiers in the new combat cars of the First Cavalry, mechanized.

Brigadier-General Daniel Van Voorhis, commandant of Fort Knox, and Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, director of the mint, and other treasury officials were on hand for the initial shipment.

A train pulled in, consisting of freight cars, a tank car and several passenger cars, and guards galore. Soon after the train left the mint slipped in. There were nine mail cars and five passenger cars and more guards.

The treasury shipped the precious metal parcel post.

Before arrival of the shipment cavalry members hitched a space about 150 yards radius around the siding. Combat cars, carrying machine guns, hovered.

Trucks arrived, escorted by a combat car. The gold was loaded into the trucks and as each truck whizzed away its combat car escort went along. At every turn of the road stood a combat car with machine guns and along the road stood soldiers with submachine guns and sidearms.

At the depository building inside the 30,000-acre army reservation were treasury guards.

The fence gate was flanked on either side by granite sentry boxes, their windows steel-shuttered and pierced by deep holes from which sub-machine guns poked out their muzzles.

AS I SEE IT

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 13—One of the more elaborate flesh and food establishments down here is just opening for the tourist trade, with the roulette wheels and crap tables slightly disguised as slot machines.

DAMON RUNYON

We understand this is on advice of counsel. Slot machines, locally known as "one-armed bandits," are legal in this end of Florida. Other forms of gambling are illegal. That is, except pari-mutuel betting on dogs and horses.

Those who are unable to see any difference in gambling, whether it is by slot machine, horse racing, stock market, or golf at so much per hole, may find themselves puzzled by this situation. But there it is. And who are we to question the wisdom of the Florida Lawmakers?

Anyway, some super-thinker sat down one day recently, and gave his undivided attention for an hour or more to the matter, and he came up with this one. If you could figure out a way to make the ordinary gambling fixtures in effect slot machines, you would have old John Law completely baffled.

No gadgets have been affixed, at considerable expense, as we are told, to the roulette wheels and the crap tables, which the operators hope fondly cover the legal point. Every time a wheel is turned, a coin goes into a slot, though there is no connection whatever between the mechanics of the wheel and of the slot. The same coin-in-the-slot procedure is followed at the crap tables.

By the way, Mr. Printer, don't make that read "craps" table. It is a common error to speak of a "craps" game and a "craps" shooter. It's a "craps" game and a "crap" shooter. You put on the "s" only when you are speaking of shooting craps. We don't want any of our friends getting the idea that we are lapsing in grammatical accuracy.

One coin covers the complete operation of an individual "gunner," or crap shooter, until he "hits," as we say at the club, or "misses out," and the dice pass to the next gentleman. A man may hunt the bones for ten minutes until he connects, or otherwise, and the one coin takes care of all his action. However, each turn of the roulette wheel calls for a fresh coin.

Legal Aces Say Device Sound "Out"

It sounds most ingenious. We don't know what old John Law will think of it, when he gets around to studying it carefully. However, we are informed that some of the best legal minds in Dade County have, for their customary retainer, pronounced the device a very sound dodge.

It couldn't last beyond next fall under any circumstances in this vicinity as we understand that Dade County has put the kibosh on slot machines effective a year from now. But the operators aren't worrying about a year from now. They are worrying about this current semester. There's time enough to think of something else for a year from now.

The drawback to the device, as we see it, is that it can't be attached to a faro bank. We are inclined to think this may make it unconstitutional on the ground that it is discriminatory.

Roulette and dice are all right for young men of health and stamina, with good sound feet. They can stand for hours at a wheel or a crap game, and suffer nothing worse than a terrible pain in the pants pocket.

But what about the gentlemen of middle years, and beyond, who are unable to compete in the baffle-scuffle of these boyish pastimes, and who love to sit quietly in a remote corner of the room, with their hat brims pulled down over their eyes, playing the noble old game of faro bank? Is there nothing in this mechanical era for them?

Well, it seems not. It seems that the inventors of the slot machine attachments to the roulette wheels and dice tables, dismissed the faro bank players from their calculations entirely on the strength of a rumor that the last faro bank player in the United States died recently of old age. This is wholly erroneous. There are at least a dozen still living.

Machine on Thrower's Arm Suggested

The roulette wheel attachment was simple enough, as we understand it, but the thing-a-mah-jig on the crap table gave the designers some bother.

It was at first suggested that the slot machine be placed on the throwing arm of the individual "gunner." Then the inventors realized that a good crap shooter works too rapidly for any mechanism when he is real warm.

You couldn't get coins into a machine fast enough to keep up with a hot man with the dice. Besides if you put a slot machine on the arm of, say, Mr. Roaring Sam Rosoff, the subway man, he would assassinate all the ushers in the room with one sweep of his arm trying for an eight. Mr. Roaring Sam Rosoff is not only a man hurling the cubes, but he loves ample space for his hurling.

A slot machine on another famous crap shooter, Mr. Nicholas Dandolas, called "Nick, the Greek," would be wholly useless. It wouldn't register. Mr. Dandolas has probably won and lost more money in crap games than any man that ever lived. But he never personally handles the dice.

"It's too much trouble," he says, so he isn't really a crap shooter. He is just a dice player.

Anybody can play roulette. As the late Mr. Wilson Mizner remarked when asked if playing roulette requires any intelligence:

"A man may play roulette and wear a demi-tasse for a high hat simultaneously."

But a crap shooter is another matter. Crap shooting calls for a nimble needle, considerable muscular effort, and plenty of money. Especially plenty of money.

We are anxious to see how the crap shooters go as slot machines. We fear it may cramp some of the boys' style. They haven't had any practice around here lately as nary a dice has rolled, or a wheel turned in Dade County, except perhaps on what we call the sneak, since the season opened, until now.

And by the way, it's still 2 to 1 against a 4 and 10, even with a slot machine.

EUROPE MARKS TIME, BUILDS UP FOR WAR

By the Associated Press

Europe's powers groped for their own security today. They watched war in Spain rage on to vicious heights, still safely within its own borders.

Britain turned concentrated attention to her vast rearmament and home defense plans. Officials studied "facts" about the reported insurgent seizure of big British owned copper mine in Spain and the forced sale of their product to Germany, but took no action.

France hoped for the success of a new plan to stop intervention in Spain by strict land and sea supervision of "volunteer" and munitions movements. Britain approved, but demurred at taking the initiative in any actual blockade. The views of Spanish insurgent General Francisco Franco were awaited.

FRENCH-GERMAN PACT

Dr. Hjalmar Horace Greeley Schacht, who had intended to visit Paris this week as an economic ambassador-at-large, canceled the trip and put plans for a France-German trade treaty in the hands of subordinates.

There was speculation that some unexpected single knight have come to Smith would make the Schacht trip seem premature.

A France-German economic pact might lead to a deep-seated adjustment of the political quarrels between the two nations aggravated for six months by charges and countercharges of intervention in Spain.

Unconfirmed reports described the desperate straits of Fascist insurgents defending Oviedo, for six months a city of siege in northern Spain. Spanish Fascists hailed them as heroes and "a second Alcazar." Fascist armies strove to relieve them.

DEAD STREW HIGHROAD

Non-combatant refugees streamed out of Madrid; the few remaining Americans were urged to evacuate. Outside the capital, Fascists reported government counter-attacks with a constant sweep of rifle fire after cutting the city's vital link with her troops in the Guadarrama Mountain barrier to the northwest. The Escorial highroad was strewn with government dead.

There still were Spanish naval incidents. One cruiser reportedly was stopped and "investigated" a British steamer in the straits of Gibraltar. Germany, delivering to Spanish Fascists a Spanish government steamer seized as a marine spoil, put the Socialist crew ashore on the Biscayan coast.

Spanish Moroccan surveys seemed to show that Faco of a German "incursion" were groundless. Spanish government planes bombed the insurgent-held zone, nevertheless, killing several.

"Life," Scientist Text for Sermon

ALL PERSONS IN PLANE HURT IN FATAL JOHNSON CRASH

Los Angeles, Jan. 13 (AP)—Martin Johnson, noted explorer, died today of injuries suffered in yesterday's Western Air express transport crash, the second fatality among the 13 persons aboard the ill-fated airliner.

James A. Brayer, 30, son of a Cleveland (O.) physician, was crushed to death instantly when the transport overturned as it landed on a fog-shrouded mountainside 35 miles from the terminal, its destination at Burbank on a flight from Salt Lake City.

Co-Pilot Clifford P. Owens and A. L. Loomis of Douglas, Ariz., a passenger, were critically hurt, but none of those riding in the big all-metal craft escaped without some injury.

Mrs. Osa Johnson, the explorer's wife, suffered concussion and a fractured right knee.

OTHERS INJURED

H. H. Hulse, Chicago, suffered a fractured right elbow and right ankle. His condition was said to be fair.

R. T. Anderson, Atlantic City, suffered a lacerated face and neck and possible skull fracture. His right leg was fractured.

Miss Lita James, Los Angeles, was recovering from bruises and shock.

T. E. Tillinghast, Hartford, Ct., suffered a fractured leg and lacerations.

Loomis had head and internal injuries, in addition to several fractures.

While snow piled up on the downwind wings and fuselage of the liner, on a ridge 100 yards below the Los Pinetos ranger lookout station, two uninjured survivors of the crash were set in motion in an attempt to determine the cause of the disaster.

HERO IN SERIOUS SHAPE

It was the fifth major airliner accident in the United States in the last 30 days.

Arthur A. Robinson, Rochester, N. Y., who escaped one of the two rear trails to stumble out after yesterday's crash, recounted at Glen View Sanitarium how the crash arose. He was treated for a fractured foot, abrasions around eyes, contusions and shock.

Co-pilot Owens, who lived in W. Lowell and Swampscott, Mass., before he moved to Winslow, Ariz., and Douglas, Ariz., where reports were received of his marriage, was carried on the stretcher.

Earlier accounts said Owens was gravely hurt with a broken jaw, possible skull fracture and internal injuries. Lewis had a fractured leg and head injuries. Miss Conner escaped with a fractured ankle.

for the possession of a pistol found in the wreckage.

He had a skull fracture, fractures of both ankles and extensive abrasions and contusions.

Using a one-mule team and wagon, rescuers toted the dead to a point where a truck could be driven. The big mule stood a foot, all in front, scarcely more than a rangy, long-legged animal, rolling along a mile or so fast.

A tragic scenario gained first attention as the Glen View Sanitarium, a semi-institution just mounting the coherency into radio, got into working; every newspaper piled up on the doorstep.

The scene was dictated by Gardner, who said he found Miss Lewis in the rear compartment, pistol in hand.

DEAD MAN OVER HER

"His leg broken, he was looking out of the compartment, a gun in his hand," Gardner said. "He had just fired a shot to direct rescuers to the wreck.

"I pulled open the cabin door. My eyes fell first on the dead man, James Braden. His body had fallen over Mrs. Osa Johnson and she was asking for someone to help lift him aside. She herself apparently was suffering from a broken leg.

"Suddenly the Plane Began to Drop . . ."

Arthur A. Robinson, right, of Rochester, N. Y., who hobbled on his fractured ankle to meet the first rescue party, tells his father, J. M. Robinson, and sister, Edith, story of the crash of the Western Air Express transport plane in the hills near Los Angeles. "We had no warning that anything was wrong," Robinson said. "Suddenly the plane began to drop, drop—then there was a terrible crash."

A 'CIVILIZED DEATH'

Johnson Escaped Perils of Wilds

Chanute, Kas., Jan. 13 (AP)—Martin Johnson's home town found it hard to believe today that the world adventurer who had escaped death in jungle trails with impunity met death in an accident on the peaceful transport plane route in California.

Only Monday Johnson had completed journals of the perils of the wilds.

"Why, I almost got killed by a taxi, this morning," he said, referring to his experience in radio, for one week, every newspaper piled up on the doorstep.

The scene was dictated by Gardner, who said he found Miss Lewis in the rear compartment, pistol in hand.

"Can you cook?"

"A little." Johnson replied by wire. "Will learn more."

He went to a nearby restaurant and hired himself out as a cook. He worked night and day for a week, then joined London in San Francisco.

EXPERT PHOTOGRAPHER

Another of Johnson's services in hitherto unexplored South Sea nooks with the London concern was of photographing. He later decided his explorations would be recorded entirely in films, actually he had not fired a gun in the last 15 years, he said recently in New York city.

Mrs. Johnson stood by, armed to protect her husband when a lion or a rhino charged instead of posed. Time after time she brought down beasts, literally at her husband's feet. On one trip into Borneo, she twice killed elephants as they were charging. Each time the elephant fell in front of Johnson and his camera.

She shared every expedition he made. They went around the world six times, spent a year in Australia, two years in Borneo and four years in Africa. Martin Johnson devoted 12 years of his life to the South Sea islands.

It was in Chanute that Johnson met his sister. Then a grade school graduate, Osa Helen Leighty sang at a theater where he showed pictures of a trip around the world. Later he visited her in Independence, Kas., home. They were married May 15, 1915.

Johnson had wandered about from the time he was 14 years old, using America, traveling to England on a cattle boat, eventually to Africa, but he always returned to Chanute. Independence and Coffeyville, where John A. Johnson was a lawyer, he worked in his father's office and developed photographic plates for Independence Daily Reporter. Martin Johnson was 20 he read in newspapers that Jack London and his wife wanted a third person to sail with them to the South Seas on London's 47-foot craft, the Snark.

Martin Johnson wrote London a letter, sending telegraphed back: "Can use you. Wire when ready to start."

Envoy's Grandson Found Unharmed

MURPHY CALLS AUTO STRIKE PARLEY; TROOPS MARCH

Detroit, Jan. 13 (AP)—Governor Frank Murphy, acting in the face of spreading strikes in General Motors plants while hundreds of steel-helmeted national guardsmen watched a tense situation in Flint, Mich., moved today to bring corporation officials and union labor leaders to Lansing for a joint conference.

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, announced he would accept the invitation, which also went to William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors.

Should Knudsen accept, it would be the first meeting of the opposing sides in formal conference since the start of the strikes which have thrown more than 114,000 General Motors automotive wage earners out of work in 18 cities. At the General Motors office here it was said the Governor's letter had not yet been received.

STRIKE IN ST. LOUIS

The U. A. W. W. local at St. Louis, Mo., called a strike today in an attempt to close the Fisher Body and Chevrolet plants of General Motors here. It was the 10th Fisher plant and the eighth Chevrolet assembly line to feel the effect of the union's campaign to stop production. How many workers were affected was not immediately determined.

Infantrymen, artillerymen and cavalry of Michigan's National Guard units moved into Flint, strike-ridden community of 165,000, under the Governor's pronouncement that "the public authority must prevail at all costs."

"We intend to show," Governor Murphy said, "that the welfare of the state is paramount to the interests of either General Motors or the strikers."

1200 TROOPS ARRIVE

At mid-morning, 1200 guardsmen who arrived by train, fully equipped for combat, were quartered in an unused four-story junior high school building at Flint, their rolling field kitchens set up in the school yard. A block away, in a hotel, 60 state policemen were held in reserve.

The "stay-in" strikers who have occupied Fisher body plants at Flint since Dec. 30, engaging in a street battle with police Monday night, said they would leave if the guardsmen ordered them to but they would not be "driven out."

In Washington, John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for industrial organization, directed meeting with Martin and with Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, said the strike "will be fought to a finish," that it "will continue to expand," and that he will seek congressional investigation of General Motors financial structure, executives' salaries, company earnings and the relationship between it and the duPont family, the Flint riot and the Michigan judiciary.

Troops Take Charge Of Flint in Auto Strike

Flint, Mich., Jan. 13 (AP)—Seven hundred officers and men of the 126th infantry carrying full combat equipment, detrained here shortly before 8 a. m. today, prepared to carry out Governor Frank Murphy's orders to "preserve peace and order" in this automotive center where bloody rioting marked the General Motors strike Monday.

Flint's civilian population, greeting national guardsmen for the first time in such a situation, viewed the arrival of the troops with outward relief. The soldiers—infantrymen, artillerymen and cavalry—were the first of a concentration of approximately 2000 guardsmen, who, the governor said, would protect the rights of both strikers and the general public.

On the troop train arriving this morning were companies from Adrian, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, Coldwater, Big Rapids, Grand Haven and Ionia.

The movement into the city was quietly executed. It was understood no police duty in the strike district was immediately contemplated for any of the soldiers. This was in keeping with Governor Murphy's statement when he announced plans to dispatch the National Guardsmen to this city.

St. Louis Workers Join General Motors Strike

St. Louis, Jan. 13 (AP)—Officials of the United Automobile Workers Union called a strike this morning at the Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants of the General Motors Corporation here.

It was not known immediately how many union members were on strike or what production the officers would attempt to use.

It was said some workers entered the plants at 7 o'clock, the usual hour for reporting for work, but it was not known at the time whether the plants would operate.

2 BOSTON MEN HELD IN THEFT

Brockton, Jan. 13—Charged with breaking and entering in the night-time, Sylvester Banfield, 26, of Charlestown, and Frank Gettings, 38, of Phillips street, in Boston's South End, were held today for the grand jury, each in double sureties of $10,000.

Banfield and Gettings are alleged by police to have been two of the eight men who held up John Alberts, 29-year-old Brockton warehouse watchman and his fiance, Stella McBride, last Friday.

While the holdup men, with a truck motor running, nearly asphyxiated Alberts and Miss McBride, they transferred $10,000 worth of cigars and cigarettes to their own truck.

Then the bandit truck was driven away from the R. C. Hill Company warehouse in Montello.

BAND LEADER ON TRIAL IN GIRL DEATH

By MILTON HARKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Norwich, Conn., Jan. 13—To an atmosphere of typical New England calm, Robert Simpson, 23-year-old orchestra leader went on trial today for the murder of Ellen Sullivan, his 17-year-old sweetheart.

Crowds converging on the century-old courthouse were kept well in check by extra deputy sheriffs. The special, limited-attendance courtroom seating capacity of 80, eat mainly of pew-like benches as Simpson, his face a mask, entered.

Two minutes after court opened Kenneth H. Holmes, rural engineer, was called as the first state witness. He testified as to the physical condition of the New London roadside from which Ellen, injured by an automobile, died shortly after an attack.

AFFAIRS BARED

The defendant, wearing a black serge suit with white shirt and dark tie, appeared tensed as the state's attorney, Hubert Smith, started Holmes' testimony. Description of several scenes, in which Simpson was the star of the leading performers.

Simpson showed no more interest during a recess, when following the noon adjournment, he spent 30 minutes carefully examining a map of the scenes featured in Holmes' testimony. Mrs. Catherine Simpson, mother of the defendant, sitting in the second row, showed no emotion, although she watched her son closely as he attempted to focus his attentions on him.

The state was admitted in evidence today the disputed orders and "license" which Simpson had to get a municipal dance at which the murder victim and Simpson met their death.

DEFENSE SCORES

The defense scored again when the court sustained its objection to a question whether the Casino dance was conducted in the manner it was customarily conducted.

Frank Armstrong, janitor of the Casino, testified that he saw Ellen Simpson and the defendant leave the night of July 17, when Ellen was fatally injured. He said that he heard nothing. He left the room, he said, and at midnight, two hours after he returned the couple had been separated.

Over defense objection, Armstrong said that he saw Ellen in the dance hall between 12:30 and 1 a. m. He said that Ellen was not in the dance hall at 12:30 a. m.

He said that Ellen was not in the dance hall when he left the room at 1 a. m. and that Simpson was not there when he returned.

CROSS-EXAMINED

On cross-examination Armstrong testified there were two fire exits from the dance hall opening directly from the dance floor to the outside. He said all the dance hall windows opened.

The state charges Ellen jumped to her death after a battle to escape Simpson. Witness for the defense will attempt to show that Ellen was accidentally killed.

"Stop! Don't! Let me alone! I don't mind you!"

Those were the words Ellen screamed, according to the state, as she struggled to escape Simpson, who was trying to kiss her, it is charged.

His brother, Chester, 20, may be called against him, according to reports. Chester assertedly told authorities he heard scuffling on an upper floor of the roadside a few minutes before the girl's trampled body was found on the sidewalk.

TRIAL WITHOUT JURY

Chester passed the brother as he entered.

"For God's sake, what happened?"

Simpson will be the first accused player to be tried here without a jury. At every court session of the state's term, presided over by Judge Edgar A. Inglis, H. Ferris and Kenneth Wynne will preside for the state.

By a vote of two to one they may send him to the chair pending the appeal which Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted slayer of the Lindbergh baby, is expected to file.

Harlem Man Charged With Bathtub Killing

PORTER SEIZED

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—The bathtub slaying of pretty Mrs. Mary Robinson Case came to a swift and unexpected denouement today when investigators seized a 33-year-old Harlem negro and charged him with the crime.

Thirty-six hours after the 25-year-old housewife was strangled and beaten to death in her Jackson Heights apartment, District Attorney Charles T. Sullivan announced that Major Greene, wiry Negro porter employed in the apartment building, had been charged with the woman's murder.

Greene, who previously had been questioned and then released, was arrested at his home in Harlem, and taken to the apartment where Frank Case, 30-year-old hotel supply company employe, found the battered body of his wife Monday.

Greene's brother, Henry, 52, and William Henry Johnson, also a Negro, also were questioned.

EVIDENCE REVIEWED

In a statement, District Attorney Sullivan reviewed the evidence which led to the arrest of Greene.

"Fingerprints on the door in the bathroom of the apartment occupied by the deceased have been indentified as those of the defendant (Major Greene)," Sullivan's statement said.

"The bloody trousers recovered from the incinerator in the apartment house building have been identified as the property of the defendant.

"The defendant at the time of his arrest was wearing a shirt taken from the apartment occupied by the deceased and the property of the deceased's husband.

"The shoes taken from the defendant's person showed stains which beyond doubt will be identified as human blood.

"The dry cleaner's identification mark on the trousers found in the incinerator have been traced to a tailor's shop located in the vicinity of the defendant's residence where they were sent for cleaning Dec. 23 last."

FUNERAL TOMORROW

Greene's arrest came a few hours after the body of the attractive housewife had been taken to Lancaster, Pa., for burial in the city where she was married Nov. 25, 1935. Funeral services are to be held there tomorrow.

The grief-stricken husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Robinson, and Mrs. Douglas Wolfanger of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., a sister of Mrs. Case, accompanied the body.

Mrs. Case waged a fierce battle with her assailant in the tiny kitchen of her apartment before he strangled her and crushed her skull with a hammer.

The intruder first drew bathing water into the bathtub which he covered with a sheet, dripping the iron and turning on the water.

Greene was arrested after questioning several days, and admitted the killing.

DAWN SHOE TRAIL

Sullivan said Greene's trail led to a pawn shop where he attempted to dispose of clothing.

Police fixed the time of the murder at 2:30 on Monday afternoon. Case, a Cornell University graduate, told officers he attempted to call a friend by telephone but only he would be defended.

When he returned, no response he hurried to his apartment and found Mrs. Case dead.

Hearts were gay when this picture of Mrs. Mary Robinson Case was taken, as she completed her education. Today she is dead, murdered, her parents and husband prostrated.

Harvard Date Bureau Mystery

There'll probably have to be a test case before Harvard undergraduates, particularly those "going to dances," are convinced that the newly organized date bureau is a success.

While the scheme announced it actually is operating, undergraduate officials of the university were unavailable today at such an occasion.

Jesse Stevens, and the founders of the bureau, students will be provided dates with Radcliffe, Wellesley, Simmons and Smith University dance waiting for only one evening, of course. The registration fee is somewhat higher, 25 cents.

And what's more, there's the guarantee:

"Your money back if you're not satisfied."

Harvard officials entered the picture when it found the bureau was of such a nature, following a query from a woman at the University of Michigan. She wanted the Harvard information about "being a man's companion."

CATHOLIC YOUTH TO FIGHT REDS

(Special to Boston American)

Chicago, Jan. 13—Urging the opening gun be fired immediately in a nation-wide campaign to defeat the Catholic youth of America in their fight against the spread of Communism, the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop, warned against the "blind leaders of the blind."

"Haters of America are haters of Christ," he told 500 students of Mundelein College in a special benediction service.

Discouraging youth of today that they are the leaders of tomorrow and urging sympathetic appreciation for their fellow-students, neighbors, even ignorant in spite of economic circumstances, Bishop Sheil declared:

"The enemies of America and religion realize that now the standards are broken in our ranks of youth, yet become pliable material in the hands of these haters of America."

Just Foolin' Or Scared?

Police today were trying to puzzle out whether they had been made victims of a practical joker or a nervous resident of Newbury street.

Receiving a telephone call that something strange was happening in the rear of a Newbury street building, squad cars rushed to the scene to find a troop of Boy Scouts quietly drilling.

CHINA DOPE CRUSADE

50,000 See Five Executed

Peiping, China, Jan. 13 (AP)—An estimated 50,000 persons watched five narcotics peddlers executed today on the broad steps of the world-famous temple of heaven.

The executions were the second in Peiping accomplished within a week and were performed with gruesome fanfare.

The documents of witnesses watching narcotics die with no sign of emotion as the prisoners were executed, said, were found in front of the city squads and be killed with bullets through their hearts.

The almost "commercial killings" started with a surprise of 10,000 packages of assorted narcotics which were seized after the "crusade" by New York's anti-dope started their journey.

FORCED TO POST

The five condemned had been tortured. The shoulder ligaments were dropped to the waist, and forced to pose for photographs for use by the authorities in their campaign.

"Take all you want," one victim shouted hysterically.

The others remained in silence.

The bodies were dumped unceremoniously into waiting coffins marked nearby and carted to the mountain "cemetery for criminals."

SACKS OF "CURE PILLS"

The crowd collected hours before the executions and watched the ceremonial fire which burned two bonzes to smoke darkening. Peiping's populous blue-sky.

Large sacks of "cure pills" were found on a cure for the habit for which they imported the habit-forming substance were heaped near the fires.

The executors of other narcotics were thrown in after them—some to slower dismissal.

Others around the contraband concealed in fake electric devices were in pillows packaged in innocent-looking cartons marked "tea," and hidden in other containers with labels of harmless goods.

After the executions, anti-narcotics authorities reiterated their recent warnings that addicts would be given another chance to prove themselves cured "but the clean-up is under way and will steadily increase in severity."

Only one person previously had been executed.

Addicts and dealers both were said to have been thrown into prison by the hilltop today, taking them as a sign the government was determined to carry out its heralded plan of wholesale executions.

RIVER PLUMBED FOR 2 FLIERS

Searchers dragged the swollen waters of the Illinois river near Hennepin, Ill., today for the bodies of Dr. Frank J. Otis and John F. Gibbons, Boston national guard flyers in the belief they drowned in their wrecked plane.

Finding an overcoat floating in the river some four miles south of the town containing letters addressed to Gibbons practically convinced searchers that the plane, in which the pair were making a cross-country training flight, crashed in the water Monday night.

Hayden Bequest Reveals Romance

Bequests to two women—one of whom he might have married and one of whom married his life-long friend—threw new light today on the career of the late Charles Hayden, multi-millionaire bachelor.

MRS. ROBERT STEVENSON

In Boston, where he was born and where he began his business success, and in New York, where he pyramided his financial holdings to a $50,000,000 fortune, Hayden's failure to wed excited society comment for years.

Society news reporters therefore, received with particular interest today the list of individual beneficiaries under Hayden's will, filed for probate in Surrogate's court, New York.

$500,000 BEQUEST

The $45,000,000 which the founder of the Boston-New York firm of Hayden, Stone and Company left to the south of America excited less comment on Paris avenue than the $500,000 he left to Princess Miguel de Braganza, the former Anita Hinderlander Stewart of New York.

Quite a Knickerbocker, New York's ace society columnist, said the Princess Braganza was the romance in Charles Hayden's otherwise lonely life.

They were expected to marry this winter, Knickerbocker asserted.

The wedding would have taken place some time ago, he added, except that the princess reasoned decided to the memory of her first husband, pretender to the throne of Portugal. He died in 1927.

SUM TO BOSTON WOMAN

The princess is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hinderlander Stewart of New York.

The other woman to whom Hayden left a substantial bequest is Mrs. Robert Hooper Stevenson of Hancock street, Boston.

Her husband and Hayden "grew up together," Hayden told close associates.

Mrs. Stevenson, before her marriage, was Miss Alice Lee Thomas of Baltimore.

She and the well-to-do and socially prominent young Robert Stevenson were married at a North Shore summer resort, where their families had residences.

The wedding took place in Baltimore in 1892.

The friendship of the Stevensons helped Hayden's life, his acquaintance said.

BULK TO FOUNDATION

Mrs. Stevenson was left $100,000 in Hayden's will.

The bulk of the $50,000,000 Hayden estate went to a foundation to train and educate young Americans to a place of leadership in world affairs, New York and Boston trustees will administer the fund.

Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, today paid a glowing tribute to Hayden, who besides several donations to the institute during his life, left it $1,000,000 in his will.

"His bequest will enable us materially to make substantial progress in the $12,500,000 program of objectives which were approved by the corporation last October," he said.

BONNET FRENCH ENVOY TO U. S.

Paris, Jan. 13 (UP)—Georges Bonnet, veteran minister of the French cabinets and one of the leaders of the Radical Socialist party, today was named Ambassador to the United States, succeeding Andre de Laboulaye, resigned.

Despite his long career as a French finance minister and diplomat, Bonnet's appointment aroused considerable speculation as to whether he would be persona grata to the Washington government. It was said to be the result of President Roosevelt's insistence that a man of "progressive" tendencies be appointed to the post.

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Official circles in Washington expressed surprise today at the appointment of Georges Bonnet as French ambassador to the United States.

Bonnet succeeds Andre de Laboulaye, who will retire from the diplomatic service on February 1.

FIRM SUPPORTS SECURITY AIMS

The Boston Furniture Company of 331 Medford street, Charlestown, is not involved in a lawsuit against Supreme Court test of the legality of the Federal Social Security program, it was learned today. Through an error, the Boston Evening American had quoted to that effect in reporting a story from Washington.

Plaintiff in the suit is the Howes Brothers Company, of which Paul Howes is president.

The Howes Furniture Company has expressed strong support of the Social Security program.

BURGLARS LOOT SHOPS, SCHOOL

Burglars came with a leaning toward handiwork, police said, a case morning today, the last invading more than $500 in cash, $1 meat scale, cigars and cigarettes and one pair of trousers.

Entering offices of the Boston Sea Food Corporation, 170 Canal street, burglars found the safe door open, but trays holding $500 in change were ripped out and left behind.

Papers and records were strewn about the floor.

Only a few blocks distant, in Stanley Thompson Bureau, 83 Washington street, burglars [illegible] stripped coats, cigarette and candy machines of pay [illegible].

In the Johnson School, Charles and Sudbury streets, entrance was gained through a third floor window on the Sudbury street side. In a miscellaneous search, they ripped open desks. From the teachers' desks they took a total of more than $20, the janitress's milk fund, was taken.

Police, believing [illegible] here also, the intruders strewed papers and books about and in the teachers' desks, apparently in the belief that they started a fire. The loss on the floor burned out, however, being confined to smoke damage.

In a chain store in the Shawmut avenue 200 block, burglars made away with a dozen pairs of pants.

The loot, part of which was later found in a vacant house, police said, consisted of [illegible] pants, 12 pairs of [illegible] and 12 pairs of [illegible].

And the 10 suits of men's clothing vanished from the J. G. Clothing Company, 85 Washington street, where the front door was forced open.

LOUELLA PARSONS—NEW FILMS—DRAMA NOTES

Columbia Acquires Film Rights to 'You Can't Take It With You'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Los Angeles, Jan. 13—Happy days are here again. Prosperous days, too. Harry Cohn, you see, dug down deep in Columbia's pocket and paid $200,000 for the privilege of putting "You Can't Take It With You" on the screen!

Louella O. Parsons

But then he wanted the play and when Harry gets anything he usually gets it. That dear kiddie is the apple of his eye, the center of his universe.

I don't suppose there's a man in town who knows a play in terms of box office as much as Cohn does and the film companies, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer included, pay him plenty for his judgment. So did Warners, Paramount and RKO.

The comedy, which was a riot on the stage, seems made to order for Jean Arthur, George S. Kaufman's Miss Stage Struck, because she's a comedienne who can play hysterics without becoming a bore. There's no denying that Jean has a following.

No plans have been made for the production as yet, but Frank Capra, the director, left the official data will be forthcoming within a few weeks.

Ward Greene's widely circulated and much read novel "Tavern in the Deep South" gets underway March 1. Mervyn LeRoy will direct this one himself and is expected to nominate Josephine Hutchinson for the feminine lead with Claude Rains in the masculine role. Mervyn has always been one of his best boosters and it was he who brought her to Hollywood.

She is a fine actress and with a chance like this—well, wait and see. As for Claude Rains—he has yes to give anything but a top notch performance.

Things are happening fast and furious at the Hal Roach studios nowadays with preparations going rapidly ahead for the building of feature productions.

Eric Hatch, author of "Mr. Man Godfrey," has been corralled and put to work writing a musical comedy version of one of his novels. It is intended for Patsy Kelly and Lyda Roberti. Times two girls were a riot as a team in previous pictures, so this announcement means that we may believe we had a good idea.

Hal Roach was the second producer discovery out of Hollywood to go in search of the director of screaming, makes his debut in the Hatch musical and well be watching for him.

* * *

That little piece between Richard Boleslawski and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is heating up. The studio wouldn't give Dmitry time off to return to his native land, and made a picture in just his story, and all is serene again.

Dmitry's engagement with a stage director, makes his debut in the Hatch musical and well be watching for him.

Charles Boyer is the latest to lure from the stage now to draw his original role in Dudley Digges' production of "Stage Door." Practically everyone in the stage cast has been signed for the movie, except Margaret Sullavan. Helen Craig, wife of John Beal, is taking over this work at RKO.

There's no particular role in mind but they're looking for new faces and Hepburn is certainly a possibility. Katharine seems to be doing all right in the screen in spite of her girl Friday and Spoilers.

He has just been signed for the male lead in "Talent Scout" opposite Jean Arthur. Frank Morgan and Ian Hunter, Carmen Lombard's next will probably be "Easy Living." Mitch Leisen will direct and by the way, Mitch is one of Paramount's favorite directors—and we agree with them.

* * *

A line to you: Comes word that Judy Garland, 14-year-old star of "Pigskin Parade," will be groomed to follow in Deanna Durbin's footsteps, even though Judy is a year older than Deanna. Incidentally, Jack Benny's son-in-law, David Rosen, son of my old friend, William S. Rosenberg, married Deanna and unlike many film marriages, he and his wife are inseparable and have retained him as business manager and chief adviser.

"One in a Million" looks a three-year record at the Roxy Theater in New York and Darryl Zanuck is nice enough to credit our Hollywood Hotel broadcast with a unique portion of this big success. Long for radio exploitation of big pictures this year as you've been of late years.

Here's a new role to add to your collection of goofy names: The Sons o' Guns Quartet, whatever that means. Anyway, it's show business, and nurses against a college background and Jane Barrett and Nan Grey are set for the femme leads. . . . Received a cute party note from Walter Winchell, whom I haven't seen since he arrived in Hollywood.

Walter is going to write a book in three nets, what with his column, the radio and acting in the movies. But he took time off to assure me that Jean Bernit is going to be a wow in their Mutual picture, "Wake Up and Live."

Priscilla and Rosemary Lane, two of the most popular members of Fred Waring's troupe, return to Boston tomorrow when the noted orchestra leader brings his Pennsylvanians to the stage of the Metropolitan for another week. "One in a Million," starring Sonja Henie, will be the film attraction on the Met's new bill.

Bing Crosby In Another Musical

Columbia's two outstanding productions of the new year, "Pennies from Heaven," starring Bing Crosby, and "More Than a Secretary," co-starring Jean Arthur and George Brent, will be the screen attractions at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters starting tomorrow.

"Pennies from Heaven," directed by Norman Z. McLeod from a screen play by Jo Swerling, co-author of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," marks the screen crooner's first appearance under Leonard Claire.

Crosby has the role of Larry Poole, ex-convict vagabond troubadour, who has been requested by a condemned murderer to look up the murdered man's family. The story is principally concerned with Larry's efforts to keep the man's bereft and destitute child and mother out of the orphan institution while falling in love with a welfare worker whose duty it is to put them there.

Featured with Bing are Madge Evans, Hilda Edith Fellows, Donald Meek and Louis Armstrong and his swing band.

The co-starring team of Jean Arthur and George Brent are a guarantee of the merits of "More Than a Secretary," a romantic comedy drama of a shy beauty and her bean-fed beau. Heading the supporting cast are Lionel Stander, Ruth Donnelly and Reginald Denny.

BUSINESS Ills Are STUDIED

FUTURE PLANS PREVENTIVE

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1935, Universal Service

New York, Jan. 13—Forward looking business management is nowadays taking the viewpoint of preventive medicine.

It is assuming responsibility for detecting grievances in the making rather than waiting for them to fester and cause overt disturbances.

By the same token, if such managers do not recognize dissatisfactory situations until they are pointed out by outsiders, they are to be blamed for that. They have been derelict in their duty.

In another sense, this is an effort to deal with labor troubles before a strike has been called, by years in advance, before grievances and strains come into being.

As a check on their own judgment, managers are to an increasing extent seeking the outside industrial relations consultants to make an audit of human relations ships in the enterprise.

DISPLACEMENTS

Gradually, managers, with a larger social vision are displacing the older type. These bank style executives are inclined to look upon a strike as a failure on their part, comparable to spinning mirrors of dissatisfaction.

It should not be assumed, that this new policy forbids that a man yielding to demands. On the contrary, it is largely a constructive program for eliminating waste and sharing liberally with workers the fruits of improved technology.

Directing executives in addition to their responsibility to their employers, also have binding obligations to their security owners and their customers.

The managing executives of big business usually have only a small fraction of the ownership stake. They are in a great measure for the savings of their stockholders and bondholders, which are largely invested in machinery which added to the prosperity of human workers. They are judged by lasting, steel results, and are expected to show a satisfactory return on the capitals entrusted to the enterprise.

Their very franchise to stay in business, however, depends on satisfactory relationships with their customers. Unless they continuously produce items of a quality and price which appeal to their customers, the whole economic position is interrupted.

It is the customers who give employment to the workers in paying for the products from which the entire wage for the workers, management, raw materials employed, recompense for use and other overhead outlays, and also a return on the savings employed in the business.

HANEY ON UNEMPLOYMENT

President Guilty
OF WILFUL NEGLECT
Toward Jobless

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Jan. 13—The unemployment situation is becoming intolerable.

Never before have there been so many millions regularly unemployed, and an organized march on Washington is threatened by those out of work at a time when business activity is above normal.

It doesn't make sense.

Why not find out what is the matter? Why not demand that Mr. Roosevelt promptly investigate and ascertain just what sort of people these millions of unemployed are?

What have they done in the past? What are they fit to do now?

How long have they been living off the government?

I know of no more gross and wilful neglect than the failure—as it is refusal—of Mr. Roosevelt to find out the exact status of the unemployed.

* * *

Aside from the backwardness of the building and construction industries, it seems quite probable that the chief cause of the large number of persons on government relief lies in the nature of that relief itself.

The Works Progress Administration (following the Civil Works Administration) makes its own dependents.

It is not natural that the least energetic and progressive persons should fall back upon such "work relief." I can understand how any person might resort to it temporarily.

I doubt, however, that any but the least enterprising would stay there.

* * *

How are we going to get rid of unemployed persons or work relievers, if they like to be unemployed or to belong to Works Progress Administration and the government encourages them?

The President signed the death warrant of hopes for a prompt end of this problem when he recently decided that Works Progress Administration spending must continue. He ruled against substantial reductions in the works relief rolls.

This was all the more discouraging in that the reason he gave could hardly have been sincere. He said no American must "starve".

But what has starving to do with the matter? No one proposes starvation. What is causing the trouble is the payment of regular wages to people who can't or won't earn them by regular production.

* * *

Now comes the latest word from headquarters, to the effect that private employers are responsible and that they must "cooperate" in putting people back to work by working them shorter hours.

Whether sincere or not, these suggestions are dangerous.

In the first place, the employer cannot "make work" or "give" jobs. His job is to employ labor productively, which means producing goods that people want and are willing to pay for.

The employer has to employ capital, land, and labor together, so that each can earn an income. He has to earn some profit himself.

The chief reason for any backwardness of private employment since 1933 has been the government policies concerning money, taxation, public utilities and labor, which have made it unprofitable to employ labor.

* * *

In the second place, it is utterly false that short work weeks make more employment. The only way to increase real employment is to make goods cheap enough that more will be sold. Then more goods will have to be produced, and more labor is needed to make them.

PUBLIC Takes Big LOSS

ON RAIL BOND FLOTATION

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 13—The general public has taken a $15,759,000 loss on a $30,000,000 bond issue floated in 1930 by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York for the Van Sweringen Corporation, it was revealed today at the Senate inquiry into railroad financing.

It was just another story in the long list of frenzied financial tales disclosed by the inquiry into speculation of the 1920,000,000 Van Sweringen railroad empire. It was the public which took a loss.

One highlight was discussion near the Guaranty Trust Company issued a prospectus for sale of the bonds on March 26, 1930, reciting a balance sheet of the Cleveland Terminal Building Company in which its assets had been written up $25,785,000 overnight to show a huge surplus on its books. Previous to the write-up, the last prior sheet showed the company operating at a deficit.

Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, inquiry chairman, charged the company's books were "padded" by the "write up," which consisted of arbitrarily increasing the recorded value of the company's real estate holdings.

J. R. Swan, president of the Guaranty Company in 1930, admitted that they were up, based on "real assets" and "could justified by a men in whom he had faith."

Wheeler charged the prospectus of the company was misleading in that it shows only a part of the truth.

Earlier, Wheeler showed the Terminal Company, which assets were taken over by the Van Sweringen Corporation as the bonds were floated, had a deficit of $469,696.07 on Dec. 31, 1929. It had a similar deficit until March 30, 1930, when the "write up" took place.

This boosted net income from $26,918,870 to $44,828,600 of the company's real estate assets. The write up gave the company a book price of $20,067,000, as compared to the deficit on the previous day.

Initial Payment

The Cash Reinvestor Corporation declared an initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, payable Feb. 20 to stockholders of record Feb. 1.

Bank Head Urges Protection for Prosperity

Toronto, Jan. 13—Sir John Aird, retiring president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, declared at the bank's annual meeting yesterday that prosperity returned to the greater part of Canada in 1936.

"The question today," he said, "appears not to be whether the present business revival will continue but, firstly, whether the prospective development of business can be prevented from assuming boom proportions with consequent over-speculation; and secondly, whether rearmament, which now induces a feverish demand for certain materials, can be replaced by constructive and more desirable enterprises."

Sir John urged world-wide tariff revision "to protect the consuming masses against possible sharp increases in living costs, and to prevent government relief expenditures from mounting so high as to nullify efforts to achieve budgetary balance."

Expressing approval of the currency agreement among the United States, Great Britain and France, announced last September, Sir John said "Business transactions are less hazardous than when wide fluctuations occurred in foreign exchanges."

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, Jan. 13—Coal men are chuckling gleefully over reports that all oil companies shortly will join some of the leaders in advancing the prices of fuel oil.

They interpret this as meaning more coal business. The higher fuel oil prices add one more favorable factor to a long list which it is held will stimulate coal sales this quarter. The biggest of these is current expansion of forward buying, in anticipation of higher coal prices later on, and possible labor troubles when operations and miners begin negotiating a new coal wage contract to replace the present one which expires April 1.

Cold Might Cause Coal Car Shortage

Both railroad and coalmen are anticipating a shortage of coal cars if a spell of cold weather comes along next month. With loadings running around 10,000,000 tons a week, approximately the 1929 rate, the extra demands for coal that would come with a drop in temperatures would tax existing railroad coal cars. Several carriers, including Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio and Lehigh Valley, added substantially to their outlay of coal cars last fall, but despite the autumn and winter equipment buying, a tense situation may develop, coal men say.

Bituminous coal output for last year is now estimated at around 431,000,000 tons, or close to 60,000,000 tons above 1935.

Timken-Detroit $2 Net Is Seen

Timken-Detroit Axle Co. sales during the past 12 months have shown substantial gains, and as a result, the company is believed to have nearly doubled its net earnings last year. The company for the full year 1936 will show earnings of approximately $2 a common share, against $1.02 in 1935, according to one source. The company is a large manufacturer of axles of the worm gear drive type used in trucks and buses. In addition, it is one of the largest producers of oil burners.

Street Loan Rise Causes Surprise

Increase of $67,420,459 in stock exchange member firms' collateral loans reported for December pretty closely coincided with the expansion of $74,000,000 in brokers' loans for the same period shown in the Federal Reserve statements. Because of the almost identical gain disclosed in both sets of statistics, it was assumed the totals were affected by borrowing in connection with purchases of the last treasury bond issue December 15. However, the stock exchange report caused a mild surprise because it showed the first notable increase in member borrowings since last April. The action of the stock market itself during the period covered by the figures would appear to throw doubt on the possibility that rising marginal stock trading accounted for the increase. As a matter of fact, the wavering tendency of prices during the latter part of December might more readily suggest some speculative positions were being lightened due to the uncertainties existing at the year-end.

U. S. Trust Votes New Preferred Stock Issue

Following approval at Monday's meeting of stockholders of the United States Trust Company, Boston, of the capital readjustment plan recently proposed by the directors, thenceforth subscription warrants will be mailed at once to the bank's stockholders entitling them to subscribe to nine shares of new preferred stock at $20 a share for every 18 shares of common now owned. These rights will expire January 23.

A total of 15,000 shares of the new preferred is to be sold, the proceeds to be applied, with other funds for the retirement of $1,500,000 of outstanding preferred stock held by the RFC. The new stock will carry cumulative dividends at the annual rate of $0 on all shares and will be convertible into five shares into common.

It will be entitled to $20 per share and accrued dividends in liquidation, and will be redeemable prior to July 1, 1939. After that date it may be redeemed at $22 per share and accrued dividends. The offering has been underwritten by Bond & Goodwin, Inc., which purchase at $20 per share, and the stock not subscribed by the present stockholders.

View 1937 PACKERS' Outlook

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Boston financial observers, through habit, inherited from the days when the big packers were largely financed by investors in this section, are now engaged in scrutinizing the 1937 outlook for the industry.

While the figures for the fiscal year ended July last year were generally better than those of the previous year, they are termed as mediocre in comparison with the past record of the industry.

As a consequence, Wall Street analysts are more cautious than ever before in their outlook for the packing industry. While they are not yet ready to recommend the purchase of packing stocks, it is worth noting that they are generally more optimistic than they have been for the past two years. All probability without going into further investigation is that the industry will do better in 1937 than it did in 1936.

The past few months' statistics on the packing industry indicate that for the first 10 months there was a falling off in the consumption of meats as compared with the same period a year ago. The reason for this is generally believed to be the increase in prices. Consumers, it is said, have been unwilling to pay the higher prices and have substituted other foods.

Notebook: While general market conditions may warrant present caution, it does seem from the above that the packing group deserves close watch. . . . Expirations from those in the habit of making long-term commitments . . . The copper group is heading an up and down existence . . . One day the price of the red metal is given a filling on wall talk and industrial notices . . . And the next, general that the restriction agreement of all sends prices tumbling . . . Odds are also acting a bit sluggish . . . Higher crude price talk is not having the effect it was a week or two ago . . . And strength should permit profit-taking . . .

The real feature of many stocks is the enthusiasm it creates among the speculative element. Many times during the past twelve months it has been observed that when a stock is selling at a price which suggests distribution to the uninitiated, the non-professional element will buy it in large quantities. Many times during the past year this group were found to be on the long side of the market when it seemed the time was ripe for a change. Usually, the buying proved to be a mistake, due to a speculative top and monthly or weekly charts of the stock in question showed that the public was buying at the wrong time. Nothing, of course, is infallible, but the public is usually wrong when it gets enthusiastic.

Ticker Talk: In a general way selling seems advisable in those directions where good moves have recently been a feature and where a churning movement is now in evidence . . . Also in those issues that broke sharply from October-November highs and have since had what may be termed normal technical rallies . . . Finally, in such groups or individual stocks that have run-up lately and after short setbacks are again showing absorption characteristics . . . In these last named any new price bursts, particularly to new highs, should be used for selling . . . At the same time a good general policy is to clear accounts of old lots and those stocks whose presence is almost unexplainable . . . Usually purchased on a momentary burst of enthusiasm.

Social Dumping

VAGUE HUMANITARIAN phrases uttered against "TRADE BARRIERS" constitute a menace to American workingmen.

It is curious that organized labor, which insisted on restriction of immigration, sits idly by and permits THE FREE IMPORTATION OF "PACKAGED LABOR" in the form of competitive foreign merchandise.

With barely 6 per cent of the world's population and NEARLY HALF THE WORLD'S WEALTH AND INCOME, the American people have the most to lose from levelling free trade doctrines.

Long ago, Frederick List admonished that free trade is an idealism not to be indulged in by countries of unequal living standards, lest the standards of the higher countries be dragged down to those prevailing in the lower.

The quick mechanization of backward countries recently emerging from a handicraft society presents List's warning under the new name of "Social Dumping."

ALVIN H. HANSEN, economist of the University of Minnesota, in an address before the American Economic Association at Chicago, referring to this phenomenon, said:

> "The plain fact is that 'Social Dumping' is a very real thing in the modern world. Japan, with her deadly combination of low wages and highly mechanized and efficient textile industry can undersell the older industrial nations."

American labor has demanded, and will soon receive the added protection of social security.

This is a proper evidence of progress.

But the implications of these cost raising developments must be clearly grasped.

They render American workers less able to compete on equal terms with sweated toilers operating on a coolie basis.

IN ORDER to safeguard the superior and rising American living standard, it is necessary to assure the home market to American workers.

American labor should take the leadership in demanding adequate tariff protection so that competitive foreign merchandise which displaces American workers is rigorously excluded.

This issue transcends partisan politics.

A Suicide Complex?

By Nelson Harding

Has the old world lost its reason?
Is it, crazed by fear and hatred,
And military madness
Really planning self-destruction?

That too ready sword unsheathing
Once again is pointed heartward.
Let us hope returning reason
Will restore it to the scabbard.

The R. O. T. C. at 'Tech'

WITH wars threatening throughout the world and America frantically endeavoring to preserve a neutrality, Massachusetts Institute of Technology takes a surprising step.

"Tech" plans to modify its compulsory military training degree requirement, permitting "conscientious objectors" to substitute courses in international law, arbitration and diplomacy.

For years "Tech" has been outstanding in R.O.T.C. work. its graduates prepared to defend their country, their families and themselves, as well as to assist in the training of other men in the event of war.

This sound program should be continued; there should be no compromise with those that either through ignorance of facts or deliberate allegiance to foreign enemies seek to make America weak.

EMPHATICALLY, THE UNITED STATES DOES NOT WANT WAR. America, its people and its government, is pledged to peace. In all the world there is no nation more opposed to militarism.

But, in this present, highly unsettled era, there can be NO ABSOLUTE guarantee of immunity from war for any country, the United States included. OUR NEUTRALITY POLICY ITSELF MIGHT GIVE OFFENSE TO SOME BELLIGERENT AND CAUSE US TO BE ATTACKED.

If that time comes, though everybody prays it won't, the fortunate "Tech" men that served with the R.O.T.C. will know the value of healthy bodies and of minds trained to defend healthy bodies.

For when enemy planes roar overhead, enemy ships line coasts and gas and bullets fill the air, the ageless law of self-preservation holds, and "diplomacy" books—even those read at "Tech"—cannot be of much use.

One just can't dodge bullets diplomatically.

Harvard Law's New Dean

JAMES M. LANDIS, only 37 years of age, recently resigned chairman of the Federal Securities Exchange Commission, succeeds Dean Roscoe Pound as head of Harvard Law School.

The selection is a good one, approved alike by graduates and undergraduates.

Young, vigorous and schooled in national affairs far beyond the average man of his years, Dean Landis will continue the highly successful work of his distinguished predecessor. Harvard is fortunate.

Fighting For Money

SPAIN has become the target-gallery for the rest of Europe.

Fearing the test of a general war, the predatory nations of the Continent are practising on one another on the "neutral" territory of Spain.

It is estimated that there are thirty to fifty thousand non Spaniards fighting in Spain and that 90 per cent of the air force on both sides are made up of foreigners.

It is shameful to admit that among these international buccaneers are some Americans.

AND, WORST OF ALL, THESE AMERICANS ARE, MANY OF THEM, FIGHTING WITHOUT CONVICTION, MERELY FOR WHAT'S IN IT.

Eddie Schneider, one of the four American aviators coming back home after their air battles in Spain, admitted to an Associated Press representative at Paris that "THE VENTURE WAS PURELY BUSINESS."

During the American revolution "Hessian" was, and still remains, a stigma branded on all mercenaries."

No American aviator or soldier should deliberately revive that word "Hessian" today.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Jan. 13.—Jay Jerome Williams is an odd fish in the newspaper syndicate world.

He has conducting a syndicated column for boys under a pseudonym of Uncle Ned. He sells a number of boxed books and sold out of a classy art of New York, Washington, D. C. And has a gentleman's estate at Cherrydale, Va.

He is also the sub-rosa publisher of a little paper for boys called "Parade of Youth" which is printed in many newspapers. It is devoted to the trials and tribulations that juvenile world known as Joyville. And back of its publication is a heart interest story.

Williams was orphaned at an early age, and like many such neglected youngsters, hopped freight trains to see the world. He was starving in a western town when a stranger asked him if he would like to earn a dollar. He proposed that the raggedy lad pawn a watch for him.

The boy took the watch. Then some bunch tingled an awareness of danger. He gave the watch back. A few moments later the stranger was arrested for theft. Williams was so impressed with what might have happened to an innocent boy he has spent much time and cash trying to protect them.

Near Radio City a pan-handler sidled up to a passing woman and mumbled an appeal. To his amazement she turned on him in a fury and pointing to herself fiercely shouted: "Me? Why I've been working all day. What under the sun have you been doing?" And did that beggar take it on the lam to a burst of hand claps from the side-lines.

Noel Coward has the most unusual and least decipherable signature of the artisterers. It sprawls over the page of a guest book, the N suggesting one of those drawn on business charts. The "oel" zig-zags like a sky rocket, and the Coward does a dip up and then imitates the bumps and down grade of a Coney Island roller coaster.

John McCormack's farewell tour is engendered by the fact he has sufficient world goods and wants a little leisure to do the things he desires. Plus his realization of the inevitable toll the years take of an incomparable voice. But the chief reason is sentimental, close friends insist. He has had only two concertic appearances since the passing a short while ago of his life-long friend and business manager, Dennis McSweeney. They were like brothers and had toured the world together since McCormack's professional debut.

William Gaxton fulfills again this season the tag of Broadway's luckiest actor. He is a slick performer, of course, but almost every play in which he has appeared in the past eight years has been outstanding. Often running more than a year. Some thought he had completed his run in "White Horse Tavern." The critical acumen was disparaging, but after the first week began to pick up and Gaxton was in another sizable hit.

A keen authority on long ago in New York is Henry Collins Brown, founder of the Museum of Natural History, author and historian. A pale poet suggests a Gladstone, he lives, as one might expect, at the Murray Hill and more than any other in the human interest historian. Every day, with tweed topcoat, Homburg hat and gold-headed cane, he sets off to prowl. The true mid-Victorian. How few are left!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Paging Mothers! MOTHERS, LISTEN!

Are you proud because "Junior" aged 35—still brings you all his problems to solve, and has never married because he "couldn't find a girl as sweet as Mom"?

Do you insist on selecting Sister's clothes, reading her letters, choosing her friends—even though she's 25 and has been out on her own for 18 years?

Elsie Robinson

Then perhaps you might like to know what the younger generation thinks of you and your methods! Carolyn Hamilton speaking. One of these smart-aleck young things." Not at all. Carolyn's a mother, like yourself, he spent 10 years (after 29 on) learning the answers. And here's an opening blast which should give many an "adoring" mother pause.

"I don't believe in Hell," says Carolyn, "but if I did, I'd hope there would be a special spot for possessive parents . . . those mothers who choke their children to death with 'smother love' . . . those fathers who want to dictate their children's careers—and raise cain if they can't.

"You parents who belong in this class may not realize that you are wrecking your children, and they will never have the courage to tell you the truth. You have raised them under the lash of remember all I have sacrificed for you . . . continuous threats of tears or heart attacks" . . . which will hardly make them frank with you.

WRECKING LIVES

"But you may be sure they complain to their bosom friends, and indulge in endless self-pity in their own thought.

"There is no surer way of turning a normal child into a sly sneak or a weak coward, than by possessive love.

"Your child is an individual from birth, and should be treated as such. Love him—BUT LET HIM LIVE HIS OWN LIFE. Send him away from you—out to his own friends, into his own young environment. Having done so—don't give yourself up to that lonely, forgotten, abused feeling which so many mothers cultivate.

"Don't act as if it were a sin when a child prefers those of his own age. It is his RIGHT. He should have his own interests apart from yours. Above everything, he should have his own allowance, from kindergarten on, and be permitted to make his own decisions concerning it, even though some of them are mistaken.

"Have spunk enough to be a separate person from your child. Make a life for yourself . . . Don't expect him to make one for you. Be interesting in yourself. Then your child will seek you out voluntarily, not as a tiresome duty or a sentimental habit.

"As for a child's duty to its own, any properly bred working boy or girl will gladly give the family a fair part of his earnings—but no family should expect him to hand over his whole paycheck, and the better you make home rather than do so or he will develop a slave feeling that will last his life.

"Perhaps I seem hard, but I have seen so many cowardly, bewildered wrecks, with no minds of their own, who were the direct result of possessive parents. And help anyone who marries one of them! Such parents pride themselves on their results. They should be bowed with shame and remorse, instead.

"Make your child free to face love or loss, life or death, like a man. Otherwise you are his worst enemy!"

A BRAVE SPIRIT

There's Youth—the sane dauntless spirit of American Youth, which once dared to turn its back on home and aim to follow the wilderness trail.

You reverence that spirit when you read of it in a book.

Do you give it its sacred chance to be itself and learn by its own experience?

That's That -:-

By Bruce Gustin

Nazi leaders, in an attempt to convince the German people that great armaments are more important than butter, declare that they are spreading propaganda about American breadlines. The idea is to make Germans believe that in spite of all the food rationing and the sacrifices now being called upon to make in preparation for another war, they are better off than the Americans.

With the use of butter and lard restricted, and the Hitler organization waging a continuous "battle against hunger," it may take a lot of propaganda to convince the German people they should suffer from a fine dairy age while there is plenty of money to spend on the army and navy. Let us be thankful in the United States that we do not consider fighting more important than eating.

It has been publicists delight ... that the depression ... over. An Alabama judge has ruled that a state act prohibiting collection of deficiency judgments during the period of the emergency" is no longer operative since the emergency no longer exists. That is the broad view applicable to the great majority of people, with plenty of faith to sustain. Unfortunately, the depression does continue for a few millions of unemployed who either have been unable to get steady private employment or to hold the jobs they could get.

No exact date can be fixed for either the beginning or the end of a period of economic depression. But there are gradual developments. A depression is started before most people understand what is happening. And it is over before there is any general realization that prosperity has been restored. That is so far as the nation is concerned. Individual depressions and recoveries are an everyday occurrence.

The European Crisis

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

Soon after Mussolini had gained power, the University of Florence wanted to give him a degree. He indignantly refused, saying he would accept an honor he hadn't earned. But he prepared to earn one. He wrote a learned book on Machiavelli, one of his life absorptions, and got the degree.

Italy's policy for the last ten years and today may be traced, like the mineral vein in a quartz ledge, by reading Machiavelli's "Prince."

Dr. Faruk Nafi Das, distinguished writer and lecturer on international relations, told me this three or four months ago, and made certain predictions of Mussolini's immediate moves in the world chess game. Their fulfillment has been uncanny. If Dr. Das could "dope" horse races the way he does affairs, he would break all the bookies in the world.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS

Dr. Frederick R. Rommel, outstanding and wide-awake president of the College of the City of New York, has enlisted Dr. Das to lecture, during the next semester, on "The Near East in World Politics" and "Modern India." The selection of the East Indian savant, author of many books and former lecturer at the Sorbonne University of Washington, is in line with Dr. Rohmmel's drive for a broad, informed and liberal educational outlook in world's affairs.

This writer can testify not only to Dr. Das' encyclopedic information, but to his penetrating and prophetic insight into the bewildering maze of current international relationships. Upon receiving news of his appointment, I asked him a few questions which are agitating us less informed citizens.

"Will there be a European war this year?" I asked.

"I do not believe so," he said. "If you will allow me to cite Machiavelli again, political philosophies are something after the fact, rather than before the fact. The clash of political philosophies in the world today is subordinate to the two basic facts of credit and raw materials. The nations which have them are going to dominate, and the nations which lack them are going to get in line, in my opinion, without war."

"What about the new alliance between Germany, Italy and Japan?"

"Events already have demonstrated," Dr. Das replied, "that it is largely an affair for home consumption in each country. These are, conspicuously, the countries which lack raw materials and can get little credit. France, and Great Britain, incidentally the 'democratic' powers, have what every other power in the world wants and must have. Germany and Japan have nothing that Italy imperatively needs.

"Already, day by day, you can watch Italy getting into the orbit of the democratic powers. Russia, too, Russia is almost feverishly moving over to the right, with her highly publicized constitution, and her dramatic disavowal of international Communism in the recent 'show-window' trials and executions. There is no love of Communism in England, and yet England has loaned money to the Soviets—when the security seemed adequate.

"Among the rulers of England, there is a great appreciation of Mussolini and of his theories of government, yet they loan no money to Italy. Similarly, Hitler has powerful friends in England, but no credit. The allotment of credit and raw materials, the very life blood of national survival, determines international groupings, and not contending political philosophies.

"If Mussolini really joined Hitler, their alliance would have to be staked on carrying through the Mittel Europa plan, the conquest of Russia and the seizure of the Ukraine, with Italy getting her share. Mussolini is too much of realist not to see the desperate hazard of this venture.

"I repeat, at this moment, he needs the credit and raw materials which France, England and America can supply. He needs them to carry through his African adventure and build his new empire. That is the explanation of his recent overtures to these three countries, and the moves toward reopening debt payment negotiations.

"There is one possibility that, under the iron compulsion of events, Germany will make adjustments which will get her credit and trade and make it possible for her to survive without war. Spain seems to me to be the crux of all this. I do not believe for a moment that France and England will allow an Italian naval base in the Balearic islands or a German base in the Canary Islands or Morocco. These two sites sever England's main lines of empire—through the Suez Canal or around the Cape of Good Hope.

SHOWDOWN IMPENDS

"Both French and British imperial destinies are at stake here, and even if France wins, the nations cannot afford to let allow them to be wrecked by the German sutreach through Spain. Here, in I am all, will be the showdown. I do not believe that Germany will be granted colonies, or that she will amount to anything if she gets them. There is no money in colonies in this century. But Germany will be given a chance for a restored economic status of trade and solvency, and I believe she will accept it.

"In short, Germany can make internal adaptations, and the other powers can and, I believe, will make concessions induced by their dependence on war. These internal changes and those concessions, with the lessening of credit and Germany's abandonment of her Mittel Europa plan, will, doubtlessly, save Europe from war—for many years to come, at any rate."

There's a pleasant New Year's sentiment!

Dr. Das attended the University of Calcutta, studied in Japan and at the Sorbonne in Paris, took bachelor's and master's degrees at the University of Washington and his doctor's degree at Georgetown University. His books have made him a well-known authority on Far Eastern affairs.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

Helen Rowland

Nearly every woman can remember that the darkest hour in her life, when her doting husband got tired and almost upset the apple-cart.

Nine hundred out of every ten could tell you that at some time or other during courtship, they ran headlong with a stage fright at the thought of marriage—and almost lost the only girl in the world. And nine women out of ten might tell you that's something wives don't tell!

There comes a time in nearly every love affair when a man gets heart-failure or claustrophobia or something, and rocks the boat of romance by trying to leap out of it in mid-stream.

PANIC STRICKEN

The small prince a woman ardently and determinedly as long as he thinks she's not taking him seriously, but the moment she turns around and waits for him to propose, he becomes panic stricken and looks around for a way of escape.

Any sensible man seems to have a perfect genius for smashing a love-affair to bits—and then trying to pick up the pieces and put them together again. A positive obsession for rubbing all the glamour and starduse off of love, and then trying to wish them on again.

It takes him about six times to fall in love, but it takes him six months to find it out—and longer still to admit it. Then he comes back to tell the girl the glad sweet news, thinking that she will be as delighted and surprised as HE is. It's all settled except picking out the day and the ring.

He LOVES her—and nothing else matters!

It does not matter that she may have gotten an earache listening to the tale of woe which he may have worn out the hall rugs, running to the door looking for a letter. It does not matter that the rose and gold may have gradually faded out of her rainbow dream.

FRAGILE AS ORCHID

It does not matter that she may have just begun to make wondering whether she preferred veronal or ryamide. It does not matter that she may have been "half dead." Or that she may have completely forgotten the hill—and found somebody else!

He has fought the good fight and lost! He has counted the cost and found it dear! He has come out "I love her!"

Oh, the lucky little woman!

Oh, well, a man's love is supposed to be a delicate orchid, which must be carefully guarded and cultivated. Maybe a woman's love is supposed to be an immortal flower, nourished on disillusion a long spell of frost!

This is love's darkest hour!

Isn't It So?

A bachelor always thinks of marriage, academically, as something that happens to OTHER men—but never to HIM.

Every girl wants her first wedding to be a "memorable affair." She wants a crowd to witness her triumph, a lot of bridesmaids trailing her, and her picture in the newspapers.

If a woman were given only three minutes to live, she would spend at least two of them repairing her make-up.

The "Eternal Triangle" no longer consists of two women and a man, but of a man, a woman and the woman's job.

This is the season for the most beautiful show on earth—a wedding.
